DR. PADEN TALKS ON EARTHQUAKE

Presbyterian Pastor Points Out Lessons of San Francisco Calamity.

DESCRIBED IN THE BIBLE

"AFTER EARTHQUAKE, AFTER FIRE, STILL SMALL VOICE."

Dr. W. M. Paden preached on the San Francisco earthquake at the First Pres byterian church yesterday morning. He took for his text the following:

'And after the earthquake a fire and after the fire a still small voice."-

Dr. Paden said in part:

Dr. Paden said in part:

"This phrase from the recorded experience of Elijah at Sinai sounds very modern. First the earthquake, then the fire and then the voice of gentle stillness. May we not hope that our neighbors across the mountains who have experienced the terrors of the earthquake and fire, an I mayhap like Elijah, without finding God in them, may, during these days and weeks which follow, find God speaking to them out of his blessed quiet. The editor of the Charleston Courier, who has given us a most vivid record of his experience during and after the Chrleston earthquake of Aug. 31, 1886, after describing the terror and panic which seemed to take possession not only of his senses, but of his whole being, during the awful seconds which gave the shock, speaks of his blessed relief which came when the shock was over: "The earth was still, says he, 'and oh, the blessed relief of that stillness' thousand fires let loose on that awful morning last week when the staunchest buildings and the strongest men staggered to and fro and were thrown prostrate.

"As we all know, it has been the fire rather than the earthquake that has left what is left of San Francisco like a brand plucked from the burning. There have possibly been in our own land swifter if not greater fires; it is a question, however, whether the cruel gale which fell to work with the flames in Chicago was so terrible as the shattering earthquake which preceded the fire in San Francisco. "The hope for San Francisco, as for all of us, in the face of calamity, is not that God was or will be specially present in the earthquake or the fire, but that if we listen we may hear him speak in the after quiet. After the earthquake and the fire comes the voice of gentle stillness. This does not mean that God does not speak in the earthquake and the fire; his voice is never silent. He speaks in the terrors of natural law as well as in the peace which comes as we rest upon his personal love.

Moral Use of Danger.

Moral Use of Danger.

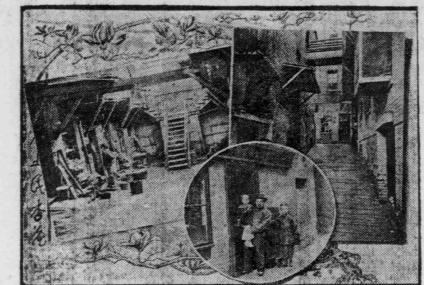

"Fear, terror, shocks which make us afraid, calamities which make our hearts quake, fires which burn out our pride or melt down our self-sufficiency, have their place in the human discipline. Peril has its place in the schooling of the soul and the making of character. Without dan-ger we would be without daring. As Hor-ace Bushnell has said: "To bear and dare ace Bushnell has said: "To bear and dare—these two great lessons are among the chief moral uses of life. Danger is the educator of courage and pain of its other twin principle, fortitude." Without these two awesome teachers our school of life would produce neither heroes nor martyrs. It is a question as to whether without these teachers the weakness of apathy or the wickedness on antipathy would not, within a few generations, crowd out the sweet and strong benediction of sympathy.

pathy.

"It is one of the commonplaces of human experiences that such calamities as earthquakes and fire seem to break open fountains of charity as from a great deep. The very best that is in the best of men is called forth and springs of human beneficence break forth in unexpected places. It is as if some shock were needed to liberate our philanthropy; as if some universal stroke of calamity were needed to weld us together as one man. So the newspapers tell us that the rich and the poor have been camping together during poor have been camping together during the last three or four nights in Golden Gate park. Even racial antipathy seems to have been effaced by common calam-ity. There is a similar manufacture. y. There is a similar running together the streams of benevolence.

Level Marked by Necessities.

'Men of all classes and conditions have "Men of all classes and conditions have for a few days, at least, found the level which is marked by life's common necessities. The well-to-do have felt the need of bread and water; twice ten thousand people have come to understand by experience the meaning of the prodigal's condition when he began to be in want. Such a calamity confronts us with unthought-of conditions. For example, it is said that there was not in San Francisco after the destruction of the wholesale district, comfortable rations for a siege of more than three or four days. It is thus that the modern city is continually dependent upon the great world outside of it; and in a larger way, any nation in the world could be brought to the verge of famine by a two-years' failure of crops, provided communications were destroyed with other nations. Every city needs almost every other city, just as everybody needs almost everybody.

Earthquakes and Great Events.

"Professor Shaler of Harvard calls atention to the rather notable fact that the two events which have probably influenced the race more than any other two events in its history, are connected by the scriptures with earthquakes. The first was the giving of the law by Moses at Sinai. After the earthquake came the giving of the decalogue; after the reign terror came the new reign of divine aw. To this the earthquake which swallowed up Korah and his troop was a simlowed up Korah and his troop was a simple corollary.

"The other notable event was the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus. This also was connected with an earthquake. As after the earthquake came the law, so after the earthquake came the searth. so after the earthquake came the law, so after the earthquake came the sacrificial death and the conquering risen life of the Master. After the reign of terror came the reign of sacrificing love and abounding life, To this convulsion the earthquake which resulted in the release and enlargement of Paul and Silas was a simple corollary. They were not only simple corollary. They were not only obedient to the law of love, but they were simple corollary.

Advice of a Veteran.

Los Angeles, April 22.—Alfred H. Castle, retired capitalist and former banker of Chicago, who passed through that city's disastrous fire, has wired Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco a warning in regard to the possibility of premature opening of the vaults of the banks and offices of that city. In his message he points out that if oxygen is allowed to reach the contents of the safes and vaults before they have had time to cool, they will ignite and be destroyed, causing immense losses that otherwise might be avoided. He recalls that the loss from this mistake was very great in the case of the Chicago fire.
